Follow up Art Activity

Then & Now; conserving the past

The following photographs were taken in 2013, at a time when the building was described as being “one winter away from total collapse”. Fortunately, money was raised to refurbish the building and even restore some original features, preserving an important part of Stirchley heritage for future generations.